

Dr. Andrea Miller

Andrea Miller is a Professor and Associate Dean for Undergraduate Studies and Administration in the Manship School of Mass Communication at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge. She teaches courses in crisis communication, broadcast and multi-media journalism.

Prior to joining the Manship School's faculty in 2003, Miller received her doctorate from the University of Missouri-Columbia School of Journalism, her master's degree from Texas Christian University and her undergraduate degree from Texas A&M University. Additionally, Miller was an award-winning television news producer for a decade. While serving a station in Dallas, Miller developed an interest in breaking news and crisis communication that has now translated into an academic research stream. Miller has published articles on television news and crisis coverage in Journalism & Mass Communication Quarterly, Media Psychology, Visual Communication Quarterly, and the Journal of Contingencies and Crisis Management.

Miller's first book, Oil & Water, addressed all aspects of the media experiences of the dual disasters to hit the Gulf Coast - Hurricane Katrina and the BP Oil Disaster. Co-authored by Shearon Roberts and Victoria LaPoe, the book was released by the University Press of Mississippi in 2014. Miller also co-edited, with Amy Reynolds, News Evolution or Revolution? The Future of Print Journalism in the Digital Age (Peter Lang, 2014). The book explored the future of the newspaper industry using the New Orleans' Times-Picayune as a microcosm of the industry. She is currently working on a third book with Dr. Jinx Broussard that dissects crisis communication case studies from both the journalists' and the public relations professionals' perspectives.

Miller, who serves on the Louisiana Association of Broadcasters Board as an Associate Director, was named to the 2016 SEC Academic Leadership Development Program, a 2011 Columbia School of Journalism Dart Center for Journalism & Trauma Academic Fellow and a 2008 Scripps-Howard Leadership Academy Participant. She was the Electronic News book review editor from 2011-2016 and serves on the editorial boards of Electronic News and Journal of Contingencies and Crisis Management.

She lives in Geismar, Louisiana with husband Doug and their twins, Gracie and Zachary. The twins are sophomores at LSU.
