

Service-Learning

What is Service-Learning?

"...experiential education in which students engage in activities that address human and community needs together with structured opportunities intentionally designed to promote student learning and development" -Jacoby, 1996.

Student Success

WSU students who participate in civic engagement activities enhance their academic and personal growth in these areas:

- Civic Responsibility: understanding community identified goals and the irresponsibility to participate in the democratic process and work toward positive social change
- Self-Awareness and Efficacy: identify and critically examine one's own values, biases, and interests; respecting and appreciating the perspectives and life situations of others; and gaining confidence to take action
- Student Success: acquiring and strengthening knowledge by applying concepts to community identified goals, leading to success in the classroom and personal, academic, and professional leadership development.
- Commitment to Social Justice: respecting different perspectives within diverse communities, developing and demonstrating knowledge and dedication to issues of culture, diversity, equity, oppression, and power and privilege

Every Class

Every class at WSU has a chance to incorporate service-learning into their course(s). The Center for Civic Engagement (CCE) supports you, the students, and your course by:

- Identifying Community Partners and building a relationship between your course and their organization.
- Assisting with developing projects that help students have a deeper understanding of the course content and community goals.
- Providing ongoing partnership and technical support with GivePulse for students, faculty, and community partners.

WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY
Center for Civic Engagement

Questions?

Please contact Jessica Perone,
Assistant Director of Engaged Learning, at jessica.perone@wsu.edu or (509) 335-3271.